Wholesale prices increase in April

WASHINGTON (AP) — Wholesale prices reversed a four-month decline and rose 1.5 per cent in April as farm prices increased sharply, the Labor Department reported today.

The April increase wiped out much of the 2.2 per cent decline in whoesale prices since last December. The December-March drop was the biggest four-month decline since 1951.

Skyrocketing prices for livestock and fresh fruits and vegetables drove agriculture prices up a seasonally adjusted 4.8 per cent last month to lead the over-all rise in wholesale prices. But not all the price news was bad. Industrial commodities rose one-tenth of 1 per cent, the same as in March.

Farm and food prices often change erratically from month to month, and because of this most economists regard trends in industrial prices as a truer measure of inflation. Nevertheless, the April increase in wholesale food prices seems to indicate a new increase is likely in retail grocery prices, which had dropped over the past two months.

The Ford administration has forecast an inflation rate of about 6 or 7 per cent this year, or about half the 12.2 per cent increase in all of 1974 in the Consumer Price Index, the key measure of inflation. The consumer index climbed 6.6 per cent at a seasonally adjusted annual rate for the first three months of the year.

Wholesale prices have risen at an adjusted annual rate of six tenths of a per cent over the past three months, compared with increases of 14.2 per cent during the final three months of 1974 and 34.9 per cent in the quarter ended last September.

In April, the wholesale index for farm products jumped 6.7 per cent following four consecutive months of decline. The index for processed foods and feeds was up 3.5 per cent, largely as a result of higher prices for meats and manufactured animal feeds.

The one tenth of a per cent rise in industrial prices at wholesale last month was led by increases for lumber and wood products, fuels and power.

Three of the 13 major commodity groups within the industrial index declined last month: metals; machinery and equipment, and hides, skins, leather and related products.

The biggest increases in the farm area were for livestock, which rose 11.6 per cent last month, and fresh fruit and vegetables, which advanced 12 per cent.

Prices of sugar and confectionary products fell sharply and cereal and bakery products, beverage materials and edible fats and oils also declined.

The Wholesale Price Index moved up in April to 172.1, meaning that it cost wholesalers $172.10 to buy a variety of goods which cost $100 in the 1967 base period.

Phonm Penh empty, blood baths reported

By The Associated Press

The last 550 foreigners trapped in Phnom Penh crossed into Thailand today and several painted a picture of a "dead city" littered with decomposing bodies and abandoned household goods, populated only by stray pets and Khmer Rouge soldiers.

However, earlier evacuees in accounts released today related mixed tales of killings and kindness from the Khmer Rouge victors, and one of the last women to arrive said soldiers escorting them gave them coconut milk and oranges all along the 200-mile road to the border.

In Bangkok, reliable sources reported that the U.S. government has imposed a freeze on any more Cambodian and Vietnamese refugees who want to go to the United States. An Embassy spokesman said he had

Criminal code changes okayed by state senate

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Revision of Missouri's 140-year-old criminal code has won state Senate approval and has been sent to the House.

The 299-page bill would make punishment for crimes more uniform and strike archaic laws from the books.

Meanwhile Wednesday, the Senate also gave final passage to a bill putting regulations on the circulation of initiative petitions and a measure that weakens the state's tough solid waste management law.

A proposal to exempt nonprofit nursing homes and orphanages from state and local taxes was adopted and sent to the House. Also getting a final okay was a bill that eliminates restrictions on unemployment benefits during pregnancy.

The House continued debate on a modified no-fault car insurance measure.

The criminal code measure, sponsored by Sen. Ike Skelton, D-Lexington, separates all felonies into four classes and provides a range of punishment for each category. Punishment is graded according to the severity of the crime.

Skelton called the bill's passage "a giant step forward in our criminal justice system."

Passed by the Senate 29-3, the bill would take effect in October 1977 if approved by the House and signed by the governor.

The waste disposal bill calls for the Department of Natural Resources to inspect disposal facilities. But it dilutes the controversial law by exempting unincorporated areas in second, third and fourth class counties from the regulations.

The measure also excludes Greene County and cities having a population of less than 500.

7 injured in 2 area accidents

A Cardwell man was seriously injured, an Arkansas woman suffered moderate injuries and five other persons received minor injuries in two area traffic accidents Wednesdae, according to the highway patrol.

Gail O'Sullivan, 66, of Cardwell received serious injuries, one passenger had moderate injuries and four persons suffered minor injuries in a two-car accident at 9:05 p.m. on Highway 25 one mile west of Cardwell.

The accident occurred when O'Sullivan's westbound car turned left into the path of an eastbound car driven by Delores Ann Bruce, 27, of Senath.

In addition to O'Sullivan's injuries, Mary Ann Carmichel, 54, of Monette, Ark., a passenger in the O'Sullivan car, received minor injuries, as did the Bruce woman and two passengers in her car, Brenda Darlene Bruce and Terry Lynn Bruce. Another passenger in the Bruce vehicle, Lennett Smith, 26, of Steele, was moderately injured.

All of the injury victims were taken to Dunklin County Memorial Hospital at Kennett. O'Sullivan was then transferred

Emergency refugee aid package approved by subcommittee

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford's emergency aid request to help up to 150,000 Indochina refugees start new lives is on an accelerated timetable for House action next week, following unanimous subcommittee approval.

The House immigration subcommittee approved the bill Wednesday night after Judiciary Chairman Peter W. Rodino, D-N. J., took the extraordinary step of publicly telling the subcommittee to get moving.

"When this country forgets its immigrant heritage and turns its back on the homeless, we will indeed have written finis to the American dream," Rodino said.

The House foreign operations appropriations subommittee scheduled hearings today on the measure. No Senate action has been scheduled.

There is no money figure in the bill but authorizes such sums as may be necessary. Ford's advisers estimate the programs which it includes would cost $507 million.

Actual money would have to be appropriated in a separate action and members of the President's Indochina task forcesaid they need that appropriation quickly to keep the refugee airlift operating.

An amendment by Rep. Elizabeth Holtzman, D-N.Y., to write a $507-million limit into the bill was rejected 4 to 3. She said she did not seek to limit the money for the refugees but wanted to require that any spending over $507 million get new approval from Congress.

James M. Wilson, deputy director of the task force, testified that $85.6 million of the $98 million the administration already has for refugees has been spent and the rest will be obligated by the weekend.

He said there is no danger of a cutoff of food and other needs of the refugees, but the airlifts would have to be curtailed, causing overcrowding on Guam and Wake islands and forcing hundreds of refugees to remain on board ships headed for those islands.

Lawrence A. Marinelli of the State Department said that when current funds run out the government can continue to provide food and other essentials, but cannot contract for air transportation or buy any large quantities of new food or medical supplies.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., said on the CBS radio's "Capitol Cloakroom" that Ford will get "substantially all that he seeks."

"There will be some cuts but I think it will take care of the problem ... Not to do it would be contrary to all of our traditions," said Jackson. The Americans for Democratic Action, a liberal oganization, also endorsed the refugee funds.

As of Wednesday the number of refugees was 113,340. This included 71,884 on the Pacific islands, 9,446 on their way to the islands, 19,346 at U.S. refugee centers and 12,664 cleared to begin life in this country.

Phelps attacks election commission's secrecy

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — By refusing to disclose alleged campaign finance law violatioons, the Missouri Elections Commission has "made all the commission's business confidential," Lt. Gov. William Phelps said Wednesday.

Phelps said the commission's secrecy on the seven complaints violates the "spirit if not the letter" of the Missouri open meetings law.

Despite the secrecy, complaints from elections in Kansas City and Columbia have becoome known.

In Kansas City, Mayor Charles Wheeler has been challenged, while a complaint has has been lodged against Columbia City Council member Fran Frueh.

Phellps said he can see no basis for the commission refusing to release the information and he knows of no exceptions in the open meetings law which would legally allow the commission to keep records of complaints secret.

Eighteen-year-old Wayne Harris of Sikeston was returned Wednesday by members of his family. He had been hiding since Monday in a junk car on Brown Spur Road near Sikeston. Harris is being held for parole violation and a burglary conviction.

Darrell Tubbs, 19, of Dexter was apprehended at 11:43 p.m. Monday near Morehouse when police stopped a pickup truck he was driving that had been reported stolen from Ralph Buchanan of Dexter. A grand theft charge will be filed against Tubbs for the theft of the truck. Tubbs is currently serving time for forgery and parole violation.

Still at large is Ronnie Tomes, 17, of Dexter, who was serving out a sentence on a charge of aiding and abetting a burglary.

Video camera stolen at school

A video camera kit and camera adapter worth $1,350 have been reported stolen from C Building at Sikeston High School.

Police said the outfit was taken from the video transmission room sometime between April 1 and Wednesday.

Police said there was no evidence of forced entry into the room.

Opal Ellen Bell, 254 E. Gladys St., told police a watch and a coin purse containing $50 were taken from her home between 12:40 and 1 p.m. Wednesday while she was outside in the yard.

The watch, valued at $95, was taken from one bedroom, while the purse was taken from another bedroom, police said. The thief apparently entered the house through an unlocked side door.

THE DOMINO FACT

The words have been misquoted so often that many people do not know that when President Dwight Eisenhower first used the term, he did not refer to a domino "theory" but to the domino fact. He used the words to describe what Joseph Stalin call "the salami tactic" — the Communist procedure of taking over control of the world one slice at a time, nation by nation. It is altogether tragic that the year 1975 marks the erection of still another tombstone over the grave of a free nation; Cambodia. Even as this editorial is being printed, preparations are being made for the funeral of South Vietnam. With these two areas occupied by the Communist dictatorship, will Thailand and Laos be able to survive? How long will the list of Captive Nations be, when Captive Nations Week is commemorated this forthcoming July, 1975?

The list of Captive Nations now reads as follows:

Albania	1946	Mainland China	1949
Armenia	1920	Mongolia	1924
Azerbaijan	1920	North Caucasus	1920
Bulgaria	1946	North Korea	1948
Byelorussia	1920	North Vietnam	1954
CAMBODIA	1975	Poland	1947
Cossackia	1920	Pomerania	1945
Cuba	1960	PORTUGAL	?
Czechoslovakia	1948	Rumania	1947
East Germany	1949	Russia	1917
East Prussia	1945	Silesia	1945
Estonia	1940	SOUTH VIETNAM	1975

Hungary	1949	Tibet	1951
LAOS	?	Turkestan	1922
Latvia	1940	Ukraine	1920
Lithuania	1940	Yugoslavia	1946

Need we remind the scoffers that to this date not one nation buried by Communism has regained its freedom? And may we ask those who ridicule the domino fact by calling it a "theory," how much more of the world can we lose and expect the United States to remain free?

The first giant step toward modern architecture was taken 4,000 years ago by an ingeniouiss Greek. He invented the "post-and-lintel" — two columns supporting a horizontal crosspiece. Later, a clever Egyptian discovered how to take the columnns away — and the arch was born. The Assyrians introduced "3-D" arches — and gave us the dome. But the Romans found that heavy domes caved in. Solution: the buttress, a super-strong support. The fifth step was taken in 1883 when William Jenney introduced the steel skeleton ("Jenney's bird cage") in Chicago — making possible the modern curtain wall.

GIVE-UP POLICY

With apparent thought of nothing but good will our state department for years has made treaties with various and sundry countries where each promised to come to the aid of the other if any of the new treaties have any good results to show for their signing. We could have easily won the Vietnam war during the Johnson, and the early part of the Nixon administrations, but our troops were ordered to "not fire at the enemy until the enemy fires at you." There were also orders not to advance on the enemy or make any effort to capture strategic territory. As a result we not only lost the war, we lost the spirit of national honor and reputation. One of the first things done by the Communists when they took Phnom Penh, was to behead their own number of leaders who had made an effort to keep and protect their own city. We have already given up South Vietnam, which seems destined to go to the way of Cambodia, but we are going to do what we can to rescue as many from South Vietnam as possible with a fleet of ships ranging from aircraft carriers to troop carriers. Countless helicopters will be used in the airlift to safety of American families, if government red tape, which Vietnam has like the U. S. does. And you must remember that hundreds, maybe thousands of American boys married South Vietnam girls and have children, all of whom are Americans.--Shelbina Democrat

AH, THE HUNT

Wining and dining are the familiar tools of the corporate lobbyist. But recent news stories indicate that for some hunting ranks right up there as a popular way of extendig influence. Southwestern Bell Telephone Co., for example, ha played host to a variety of public officials-including a former member of the Missouri Public Service Commission- at a hunting site it owns in Texas. And the Wall Street Journal reports that 59 per cent of the guests at a Maryland farm rented by the Northrup Corp. for hunting purposes were employes of the Federal Government- mostly military men and congressional staff members-whose interest in shooting ducks presumably coincided with Northrup's interest in military contracts.

It is not immediately clear, to borrow a Pentagon phrase, what the cost-effectiveness of all this eating and drinking and shooting is, but one suspects that it would not continue if those paying the bills did not somehow feel they were getting their money's worth--Post Democrat

WAR ON DANDELIONS

In a tribute to "The Beautiful Dandelon," The New York Times recently editorialized about this pestiferous weed whose color was said to be "magnificent" and whose shape "beautiful from every angle."

Everyone is entitled to his or her own vision of beauty, and the small band of dandelion admirers includes no less a personage than Henry Ward Beecher who wrote in A Discourse On Flowers, "You cannot forget if you would those golden kisses all over the cheeks of the meadow, queerly called dandelions." Well, a lot of people can. There are many farmers, trying to maintain pastures for their cows, and gardners trying to give tender loving care to a tomato plant or two, who would like to inflict their own brand of poetic justice on the dandelion. Anti-dandelion testimonials may be obtained from those who labor to maintain a manicured lawn or a well-groomed golf course.

Give the weed a little crack in the driveway and it will widen it, they complain; show it a little mercy and it will take over. There is no charm in a dandelion which intrudes in the tuck-pointing of a wall and no beauty in a plant that is so common, they say. Obviously, "they" are biased and what makes them so resentlful is that in the war against dandelions, the enemy almost always wins.

POOR ALTERNATIVE

Commenting on a poll of consumers by the American Farm Bureau Federation, Mrs. Haven Smith, chairman of the American Farm Bureau Women's Committee, observes: "the most interesting finding of this year's survey is the widespread acceptance--by 86 per cent of the respondents--of the idea that government should should cut its spending. This solution to the problem of inflation was favored by a higher percentage of the people than any other proposed solution, including holding down union demands for higher wages for limiting profits of the food distribution industry or of farmers."

If the sentiments of consumers are accurately portrayed in this survey and if they will support those elected representatives at federal, state and local levels of government who are courageous enough to reject lavish tax spending proposals, inflation can be controlled and respect for the dollar restored. As Mrs. Smith adds, "The alternatives are further inflation, more price controls, food shortages, rationing, and black markets."

MACHINERY OF ABUNDANCE

During the past several months, the price control fiasco should have demonstrated once and for all the futility of trying to hide the consequences of dollar-devaluing government spending behind a facade of repressive restrictions on certain groups of citizens and businesses. All these restrictions do is disrupt the normal functioning of the marketplace to which the U.S. mass-production, mass-distribution system is geared. This system is highly competitive, innovative and responsive to consumer wishes. It cannot, however, be compelled to absorb the penalties of government financial mismanagement that leads to endless federal deficits.

Even in the midst of the economic distortions of inflation, the manner in which the U.S. retail distribution mechanism has managed to keep luxuries and necessities flowing to American consumers is nothing less than remarkable. As there is scare talk of shortages and consumers rush to stock up, the modern supermarket somehow manages to maintain thousants of items on its shelves, and customers continue to move through checkout counters with loaded carts. Even a reversion to the days when people carried their purchases in paper bags would cause chaos now. The goods simply couldn't be moved fast enough to prevent traffic jams in parking lots and in store aisles. Then, too, think of the logistics of today's mass-merchandising system; those supermarkets don't remain full automatically. The supplies -- everything from toiletries to hot dogs -- pour into behind-the-scenes storage areas by rail and by truck in a never-ending -- but carefully-calculated -- flood, a flood that commences on farms and in factories and never falters in its course to the homes of America.

KEY TO GREATNESS

In an effort to beef up college enrollments, federal regulations now decree that top priority be given to the needs of the disadvantaged, minority groups and the "average" student. Some of those with a high intelligence quotient (I.Q.) may thus find themselves denied financial aid because it is "based on need, not merit or ability." It is unfortunate, indeed, that the needs of the intellectually-endowed may be left unmet. For example, it is said that, given a chance, one 14 year-old Michigan youth with superior mathematical skill could have become another Einstein. But his college scholarship application was rejected because his policeman father makes $13,500 yearly. Though the family had suffered many reverses, illnesses and high medical bills an really needed the scholarship, the boy was ineligible because his family income would have been sufficient under better circumstances.

In our drive for educational excellence, we cannot afford to ignore those with great academic potential. For only through cultivation of each individual's knowledge and skills, as much as is humanly possible, will we be able to realize our potential as a nation.

THE SECRET DOVE

WASHINGTON — If Nelson Rockefeller keeps it up, he could become our greatest Vice President since Spiro Agnew. Just the other day he explained to the National Urban Coalition that the reason he did not criticize American involvement in Vietnam in the 1960s was because he feared he would harm New York state's chances of obtaining federal aid.

"I was elected governor of New York and my responsibility was to the people of New York," he was quoted as saying. "You don't kick people in Washington in the shins if you expect them to do something for you." He added, "I think I did a pretty good job if I do say so myself." Rockefeller claimed that during his administration the state increased its aid from the federal government from 5 cents on each dollar of taxes paid by the state to 18 cents.

When the questioner told the Vice President he was disappointed that Rockefeller failed to speak out while the government was spending $150 billion and 50,000 lives on the war in Vietnam, the Vice President shot back, "I can see you never ran for political office, young man."

One's sympathies can go out to Rockefeller who as governor of New York had to keep quiet on the war to get his state as much money as he could. There must have been some terrible soul-searching during those difficult years of the '60s.

"Governor, the students are up in arms about the war; there are demonstrations in every city, and we just keep pouring in more men to no avail. Don't you think you ought to come out with a statement against U.S. involvement in Vietnam?"

"Oh God, I wish I could. But I have to think of the state first. We need some more money for our highways and I'm not going to kick those guys in Washington in the shins right now."

"Couldn't you say it in such a way that they wouldn't get angry?"

"I've thought and thought about it, but you don't know how sensitive the White House is. One word from me about the war and we'll lose the Brooklyn Navy Yard. I've got a good relationship with President Johnson and he just gave me five more veterans' hospitals. I'm not about to blow it with some stupid statement that could only get him sore at me. That war means a lot to Johnson and he's been pretty good to anyone who supports him. But one peep out of me and we could lose $100 million in urban renewal."

"You're a good governor, sir. The easy thing would be to speak out against the war. The tough thing is to remain quiet and get all the federal money you can."

"Someday those same students who are demonstrating in the streets are going to say, 'Thank the Lord Rocky kept his mouth shut about the war. Otherswise we never would have had a new post office in Albany!'"

"The war won't go on forever, Governor, but you've given New York monuments for the future."

"Why don't those kids understand when you run for political office you have to please those who are in charge of the purse strings? I could say the war is a waste of money and lives. I could say we ought to get out of there right away. But if I did, where would I get the money to fix up Jones Beach?"

"They'd cut you off without a dime, Governor. If the world only knew you were a secret Dove."

"Someday I'll be able to tell them how I really felt about the war. Someday they'll realize that I knew in my heart it was wrong and stupid and immoral. But I can't do it now -- not while the Long Island Railroad is in trouble."

"Sir, President Johnson is on the phone."

"Mr. President, Rocky here. Your people really did a great job on that Tet offensive. I couldn't have been more thrilled . . . You'll have that coonskin on the wall before you know it . . . What? You want to give me a new dam for Niagara Falls. Aw, Mr. President, you shouldn't."

Stop the Ripoffs: Gov't To Spend Over $118 Billion This Year To Assure Needy's Income

WASHINGTON -- Sure, I delivered newspapers. And shined shoes. And right alongside me was a shoe-shine girl, later to become the wife of a university economist. And my mother, nice lady, washed floors, windows and the ill for a few dollars a week. Big depression, No work, no eat. We worked, We ate. So my credits are good -- including those I earned during 11 long evening college years.

So today there are over eight million jobless. And much indignation. The unemployment is right across the spectrum -- white and black. And there is much talk of the need for dignity in work, and how carefully the jobless must be placed.

And never anywhere has so much been spent by fellow citizens, through the government, on the unlucky.

The bill for total income-security outlays by the Treasury will hit above $118 billion in the next fiscal year.

And there will be at least another $4.5 billion for manpower training. All this will be a jump of some $40 billion in two years.

Yet we will hear much about the system being cruel and shaky. We will hear this from those who can help their fellow man in many ways. -- and yet don't. There is, for example, an all-time high number of unemployed in the building and construction field -- almost 20 per cent. Much depends on this industry. It has been in recession for so long it will take many months to pull it out -- especially in the building sector. Many companies are bankrupt -- or virtually so. Special attention must be paid to it --. sort of a domestic Marshall plan is needed. Money must be pumped in to make time for pulling together crews, management, obtaining permits and neutralizing what labor chief George Meany calls those "damn environmentalists."

Yet when May 1 rolled in, scored of thousands of construction workers walked out -- and strikes numbered over 130. And, there have been forced wage fringe settlements averaging 10 per cent increases and running as high as 20 and 30 per cent.

There doesn't appear to be any share-the-work sentiment. Shouldn't there always be room for young helpers -- especially since teenage joblessness (40.2 per cent of young blacks, for example) is so dangerously widespread?

The average first year wage increase this quarter across the U.S. now runs to 12.5 per cent. Airlines with the lowest income in years have been hit by the highest wage gains. One commercial carrier had to yield millions in back wages to machinists in retroactive pay under a recent contract so long in the bargaining that the new renewed contract is almost up.

Everywhere there appears to be a business-as- usual psyche among the rank and file -- despite the heavy unemployment. And despite the heavy taxes needed to keep the jobless secure.

And, one steelworkers union district recently called for a six-hour day at eight hours pay -- yet said nothing about sharing some of their work with jobless brethren.

So the burden on the rest of the American working people, blue and white collar, gets more and more back (and pocketbook) breaking. The outlay for unemployment compensation is jumping from $6.1 billion in 1974 to over $20 billion in fiscal 1976. There is no resentment over these payments.

But is there an inspection system to nail the ripoffs? Are there thousands now using the recession as a cover for long paid vacations? Should there be the usual pick-and-choose job - placement standards for those receiving unemployment insurance for a year or 65 weeks? We found the ripoff artists on welfare. Let's make certain they're not crowding out deserving, tragically jobless men and women by stealing or being subsidized while lying around on the beach somewhere.

There are hundreds of thousands of jobs listed in many areas of the nation. Why aren't they filled? Self-- styled dignity without bread -- or bread bought by the taxes (transfer money) of others -- is undignified, actually. Why should $17,000 to $10,000 a - year public- service jobs be created by the hundreds of thousands? Why shouldn't this money go to make-work projects? Many an old WPAer of the '30s , be he artist or actor or bricklayer, can look even today with pride on what was built in the big depression.

Well, the word is the ression is ebbing. That's what President Ford means by "good omens." The econometrics fellows say the rate of layoffs has eased. In 1973 layoffs ran at the rate of 0.9 (about one out of a hundred employes). Then it rocketed to 3.5 in January 1975. Now it has eased to 2.89. That's a strong smoke signal to the economists. Perhaps we've turned that proverbial corner. We do have a work force of 92 million, growing at the rate of some two million a year. So there are 84 million employed. And helping the luckless 8.9 million jobless.

No one resents helping. But no one wants to be ripped offf. Not at these tax rates.

JACK ANDERSON SAYS:
How to Lose Friends And Influence Foes
By JACK ANDERSON
with Les Whitten

WASHINGTON--President Ford's chief House lobbyist, Vernon G. Loen, has been losing friends for him on Capitol Hill.

Influencing legislation is a delicate art, but Loen has the finesse of a truck driver. He got into a shouting match, for example, with Rep. Berkley Bedell D.-Iowa, over the Vietnam evacuation.

"Listen, I've been around Washington for a long time," huffed Loen. "I don't have to take any shit from a freshman."

Not only was the four-letter offensive to Bedell, a religious man, but the freshmen hold the balance of power in the House. Loen will have to learn to be nice to freshmen if he expects to manuever White House legislation through the House.

Loen acknowledged that the language we quoted was "close" to what he had said. "I blew my cool," he admitted. But he had been provoked, he insisted, by the congressman. "He was irrational. He was abusive. He insulted the President," charged Loen.

Bedell said the presidential aide's language "does not concern me nearly as much as the attitude of the White House." Both men exchanged letters of apology after they had cooled down.

On another occasion, Loen got into a raging argument with Sen. James Abourezk, D.-S.D., over Vietnam. Witnesses say Loen's language was abusive. He told Abourezk, "You'll have the blood of the South Vietnamese on your hands," and then threatened him, "We're going to beat you in '78."

"You aren't even going to be around in '78, Loen," retorted the senator.

The White House lobbyist explained that his remarks had been made i"in a private conversation..in a cocktail setting." But he acknowledged that he and the senator "obviously have very great differences."

ANOTHER RIPOFF: Although the Pentagon insists $104.6 billion budget is trimmed of all fat, the munitions makers still manage to squeeze extra lard out of their defense contracts.

This is the confidential finding, at least, of Sen. William Proximire, D.-Wis., whose subcommittee has accused defense contractors of chiseling the taxpayers out of $100 million a year through a depreciation gimmick.

The subcommittee named four of the nation's most prestigious manufacturers--Lockheed Aircraft, General Dynamics, United Technologies and General Electric--among the culprits.

The ripoff, according to the senator's "premiminary information," works this way:

The contractors' "are fully reimbursed for..equipment used in the performances of defense contracts." They may collect a few dollars for special dies, or millions for gigantic drydocks. The payments are then spread out over the life of the quipment.

One company, which depreciated its drydock over a 40-year period, collected $200,000 a year from the government. But another firm depreciated its dock over a 12-year span and collected a juicy $1.2 million a year.

By speeding up the depreciation, the companies wind up with more capital for investments. This brings them faster profits with less interest to pay.

Proxmire's study also charges that contractors "use the equipment for their commercial business after the government has paid for it." Some of the equipment purchased by the taxpayers, according to Proxmire, is never used for government work.

To plug the loopholes, the Cost Accounting Standards Board, after buckling to the contractors on several points, set somewhat stricter depreciation standards effective in July. But now, defense contractors have sent their lobbyists swarming over Capitol Hill to soften these mild standards.

Footnote: General Electric, Genral Dynamics, United Technologies and Lockheed swiftly and stoutly denied Proxmire's charges. All four claimed they are in full compliance with federal standards.

FEEDING THE REFUGEES: A White House inquiry about the Agriculture Department's ability to feed the incoming Vietnamese refugees has produced a typical bureaucratic response.

A memo, intended for official eyes only, explains the refugees couldn't receive food stamps because the rules stipulate that recipients must be family units living in households. So the refugees, homeless by definition, couldn't qualify.

The memo goes on to outline other limitations, never mentioning that the Agriculture Department has plenty of surplus dairy products that could be used to feed the hungry refugees.

Those who have reached the United States, meanwhile, have received a cool reception. For instance, Rep. Bob Sikes, D.-Fla., who has a hand on the military pursestrings in Congress, raised a howl with the Pentagon for dumping refugees at Eglin Air Force Base in his Florida panhandle district.

Sikes finally got assurances that Eglin wouldn't get too many refugees and that those who landed wouldn't stay too long. The irony is that Sikes consistently supported the Vietnam War. In his view, apparently, the Vietnamese are fine people, but he wouldn't want to live next door to them.

President Ford, meanwhile, has been pushing Congress to approve $327 million in humanitarian aid. But it will take more than money to make a home for the refugees in the United States.

THE DOMINO FACT

The words have been misquoted so often that many people do not know that when President Dwight Eisenhower first used the term, he did not refer to a domino "theory" but to the domino fact. He used the words to describe what Joseph Stalin call "the salami tactic" — the Communist procedure of taking over control of the world one slice at a time, nation by nation. It is altogether tragic that the year 1975 marks the erection of still another tombstone over the grave of a free nation; Cambodia. Even as this editorial is being printed, preparations are being made for the funeral of South Vietnam. With these two areas occupied by the Communist dictatorship, will Thailand and Laos be able to survive? How long will the list of Captive Nations be, when Captive Nations Week is commemorated this forthcoming July, 1975?

The list of Captive Nations now reads as follows:

Albania	1946	Mainland China	1949
Armenia	1920	Mongolia	1924
Azerbaijan	1920	North Caucasus	1920
Bulgaria	1946	North Korea	1948
Byelorussia	1920	North Vietnam	1954
CAMBODIA	1975	Poland	1947
Cossackia	1920	Pomerania	1945
Cuba	1960	PORTUGAL	?
Czechoslovakia	1948	Rumania	1947
East Germany	1949	Russia	1917
East Prussia	1945	Silesia	1945
Estonia	1940	SOUTH VIETNAM	1975
Georgia	1920	THAILAND	?
Hungary	1949	Tibet	1951
LAOS	?	Turkestan	1922
Latvia	1940	Ukraine	1920
Lithuania	1940	Yugoslavia	1946

Need we remind the scoffers that to this date not one nation buried by Communism has regained its freedom? And may we ask those who ridicule the domino fact by calling it a "theory," how much more of the world can we lose and expect the United States to remain free?

The first giant step toward modern architecture was taken 4,000 years ago by an ingeniouiss Greek. He invented the "post-and-lintel" — two columns supporting a horizontal crosspiece. Later, a clever Egyptian discovered how to take the columnns away — and the arch was born. The Assyrians introduced "3-D" arches — and gave us the dome. But the Romans found that heavy domes caved in. Solution: the buttress, a super-strong support. The fifth step was taken in 1883 when William Jenney introduced the steel skeleton ("Jenney's bird cage") in Chicago — making possible the modern curtain wall.

GIVE-UP POLICY

With apparent thought of nothing but good will our state department for years has made treaties with various and sundry countries where each promised to come to the aid of the other if any of the new treaties have any good results to show for their signing. We could have easily won the Vietnam war during the Johnson, and the early part of the Nixon administrations, but our troops were ordered to "not fire at the enemy until the enemy fires at you." There were also orders not to advance on the enemy or make any effort to capture strategic territory. As a result we not only lost the war, we lost the spirit of national honor and reputation. One of the first things done by the Communists when they took Phnom Penh, was to behead their own number of leaders who had made an effort to keep and protect their own city. KEY TO GREATNESS

In an effort to beef up college enrollments, federal regulations now decree that top priority be given to the needs of the disadvantaged, minority groups and the "average" student. Some of those with a high intelligence quotient (I.Q.) may thus find themselves denied financial aid because it is "based on need, not merit or ability." It is unfortunate, indeed, that the needs of the intellectually-endowed may be left unmet. For example, it is said that, given a chance, one 14 year-old Michigan youth with superior mathematical skill could have become another Einstein. But his college scholarship application was rejected because his policeman father makes $13,500 yearly. Though the family had suffered many reverses, illnesses and high medical bills an really needed the scholarship, the boy was ineligible because his family income would have been sufficient under better circumstances.

In our drive for educational excellence, we cannot afford to ignore those with great academic potential. For only through cultivation of each individual's knowledge and skills, as much as is humanly possible, will we be able to realize our potential as a nation.

Art Buchwald

THE SECRET DOVE

WASHINGTON — If Nelson Rockefeller keeps it up, he could become our greatest Vice President since Spiro Agnew. Just the other day he explained to the National Urban Coalition that the reason he did not criticize American involvement in Vietnam in the 1960s was because he feared he would harm New York state's chances of obtaining federal aid.

"I was elected governor of New York and my responsibility was to the people of New York," he was quoted as saying. "You don't kick people in Washington in the shins if you expect them to do something for you." He added, "I think I did a pretty good job if I do say so myself." Rockefeller claimed that during his administration the state increased its aid from the federal government from 5 cents on each dollar of taxes paid by the state to 18 cents.

When the questioner told the Vice President he was disappointed that Rockefeller failed to speak out while the government was spending $150 billion and 50,000 lives on the war in Vietnam, the Vice President shot back, "I can see you never ran for political office, young man."

One's sympathies can go out to Rockefeller who as governor of New York had to keep quiet on the war to get his state as much money as he could. There must have been some terrible soul-searching during those difficult years of the '60s.

"Governor, the students are up in arms about the war; there are demonstrations in every city, and we just keep pouring in more men to no avail. Don't you think you ought to come out with a statement against U.S. involvement in Vietnam?"

"Oh God, I wish I could. But I have to think of the state first. We need some more money for our highways and I'm not going to kick those guys in Washington in the shins right now."

"Couldn't you say it in such a way that they wouldn't get angry?"

"I've thought and thought about it, but you don't know how sensitive the White House is. One word from me about the war and we'll lose the Brooklyn Navy Yard. I've got a good relationship with President Johnson and he just gave me five more veterans' hospitals. I'm not about to blow it with some stupid statement that could only get him sore at me. That war means a lot to Johnson and he's been pretty good to anyone who supports him. But one peep out of me and we could lose $100 million in urban renewal."

"You're a good governor, sir. The easy thing would be to speak out against the war. The tough thing is to remain quiet and get all the federal money you can."

"Someday those same students who are demonstrating in the streets are going to say, 'Thank the Lord Rocky kept his mouth shut about the war. Otherswise we never would have had a new post office in Albany!'"

"The war won't go on forever, Governor, but you've given New York monuments for the future."

"Why don't those kids understand when you run for political office you have to please those who are in charge of the purse strings? I could say the war is a waste of money and lives. I could say we ought to get out of there right away. But if I did, where would I get the money to fix up Jones Beach?"

"They'd cut you off without a dime, Governor. If the world only knew you were a secret Dove."

"Someday I'll be able to tell them how I really felt about the war. Someday they'll realize that I knew in my heart it was wrong and stupid and immoral. But I can't do it now -- not while the Long Island Railroad is in trouble."

"Sir, President Johnson is on the phone."

"Mr. President, Rocky here. Your people really did a great job on that Tet offensive. I couldn't have been more thrilled . . . You'll have that coonskin on the wall before you know it . . . What? You want to give me a new dam for Niagara Falls. Aw, Mr. President, you shouldn't."

Stop the Ripoffs: Gov't To Spend Over $118 Billion This Year To Assure Needy's Income

WASHINGTON -- Sure, I delivered newspapers. And shined shoes. And right alongside me was a shoe-shine girl, later to become the wife of a university economist. And my mother, nice lady, washed floors, windows and the ill for a few dollars a week. Big depression, No work, no eat. We worked, We ate. So my credits are good -- including those I earned during 11 long evening college years.

So today there are over eight million jobless. And much indignation. The unemployment is right across the spectrum -- white and black. And there is much talk of the need for dignity in work, and how carefully the jobless must be placed.

And never anywhere has so much been spent by fellow citizens, through the government, on the unlucky.

The bill for total income-security outlays by the Treasury will hit above $118 billion in the next fiscal year.

And there will be at least another $4.5 billion for manpower training. All this will be a jump of some $40 billion in two years.

Yet we will hear much about the system being cruel and shaky. We will hear this from those who can help their fellow man in many ways. -- and yet don't. There is, for example, an all-time high number of unemployed in the building and construction field -- almost 20 per cent. Much depends on this industry. It has been in recession for so long it will take many months to pull it out -- especially in the building sector. Many companies are bankrupt -- or virtually so. Special attention must be paid to it --. sort of a domestic Marshall plan is needed. Money must be pumped in to make time for pulling together crews, management, obtaining permits and neutralizing what labor chief George Meany calls those "damn environmentalists."

Yet when May 1 rolled in, scored of thousands of construction workers walked out -- and strikes numbered over 130. And, there have been forced wage fringe settlements averaging 10 per cent increases and running as high as 20 and 30 per cent.

There doesn't appear to be any share-the-work sentiment. Shouldn't there always be room for young helpers -- especially since teenage joblessness (40.2 per cent of young blacks, for example) is so dangerously widespread?

The average first year wage increase this quarter across the U.S. now runs to 12.5 per cent. Airlines with the lowest income in years have been hit by the highest wage gains. One commercial carrier had to yield millions in back wages to machinists in retroactive pay under a recent contract so long in the bargaining that the new renewed contract is almost up.

Everywhere there appears to be a business-as- usual psyche among the rank and file -- despite the heavy unemployment. And despite the heavy taxes needed to keep the jobless secure.

And, one steelworkers union district recently called for a six-hour day at eight hours pay -- yet said nothing about sharing some of their work with jobless brethren.

So the burden on the rest of the American working people, blue and white collar, gets more and more back (and pocketbook) breaking. The outlay for unemployment compensation is jumping from $6.1 billion in 1974 to over $20 billion in fiscal 1976. There is no resentment over these payments.

But is there an inspection system to nail the ripoffs? Are there thousands now using the recession as a cover for long paid vacations? Should there be the usual pick-and-choose job - placement standards for those receiving unemployment insurance for a year or 65 weeks? We found the ripoff artists on welfare. Let's make certain they're not crowding out deserving, tragically jobless men and women by stealing or being subsidized while lying around on the beach somewhere.

There are hundreds of thousands of jobs listed in many areas of the nation. Why aren't they filled? Self-- styled dignity without bread -- or bread bought by the taxes (transfer money) of others -- is undignified, actually. Why should $17,000 to $10,000 a - year public- service jobs be created by the hundreds of thousands? Why shouldn't this money go to make-work projects? Many an old WPAer of the '30s , be he artist or actor or bricklayer, can look even today with pride on what was built in the big depression.

Well, the word is the ression is ebbing. That's what President Ford means by "good omens." The econometrics fellows say the rate of layoffs has eased. In 1973 layoffs ran at the rate of 0.9 (about one out of a hundred employes). Then it rocketed to 3.5 in January 1975. Now it has eased to 2.89. That's a strong smoke signal to the economists. Perhaps we've turned that proverbial corner. We do have a work force of 92 million, growing at the rate of some two million a year. So there are 84 million employed. And helping the luckless 8.9 million jobless.

No one resents helping. But no one wants to be ripped offf. Not at these tax rates.

JACK ANDERSON SAYS:
How to Lose Friends And Influence Foes
By JACK ANDERSON
with Les Whitten

WASHINGTON--President Ford's chief House lobbyist, Vernon G. Loen, has been losing friends for him on Capitol Hill.

Influencing legislation is a delicate art, but Loen has the finesse of a truck driver. He got into a shouting match, for example, with Rep. Berkley Bedell D.-Iowa, over the Vietnam evacuation.

"Listen, I've been around Washington for a long time," huffed Loen. "I don't have to take any shit from a freshman."

Not only was the four-letter offensive to Bedell, a religious man, but the freshmen hold the balance of power in the House. Loen will have to learn to be nice to freshmen if he expects to manuever White House legislation through the House.

Loen acknowledged that the language we quoted was "close" to what he had said. "I blew my cool," he admitted. But he had been provoked, he insisted, by the congressman. "He was irrational. He was abusive. He insulted the President," charged Loen.

Bedell said the presidential aide's language "does not concern me nearly as much as the attitude of the White House." Both men exchanged letters of apology after they had cooled down.

On another occasion, Loen got into a raging argument with Sen. James Abourezk, D.-S.D., over Vietnam. Witnesses say Loen's language was abusive. He told Abourezk, "You'll have the blood of the South Vietnamese on your hands," and then threatened him, "We're going to beat you in '78."

"You aren't even going to be around in '78, Loen," retorted the senator.

The White House lobbyist explained that his remarks had been made i"in a private conversation..in a cocktail setting." But he acknowledged that he and the senator "obviously have very great differences."

ANOTHER RIPOFF: Although the Pentagon insists $104.6 billion budget is trimmed of all fat, the munitions makers still manage to squeeze extra lard out of their defense contracts.

This is the confidential finding, at least, of Sen. William Proximire, D.-Wis., whose subcommittee has accused defense contractors of chiseling the taxpayers out of $100 million a year through a depreciation gimmick.

The subcommittee named four of the nation's most prestigious manufacturers--Lockheed Aircraft, General Dynamics, United Technologies and General Electric--among the culprits.

The ripoff, according to the senator's "premiminary information," works this way:

The contractors' "are fully reimbursed for..equipment used in the performances of defense contracts." They may collect a few dollars for special dies, or millions for gigantic drydocks. The payments are then spread out over the life of the quipment.

One company, which depreciated its drydock over a 40-year period, collected $200,000 a year from the government. But another firm depreciated its dock over a 12-year span and collected a juicy $1.2 million a year.

By speeding up the depreciation, the companies wind up with more capital for investments. This brings them faster profits with less interest to pay.

Proxmire's study also charges that contractors "use the equipment for their commercial business after the government has paid for it." Some of the equipment purchased by the taxpayers, according to Proxmire, is never used for government work.

To plug the loopholes, the Cost Accounting Standards Board, after buckling to the contractors on several points, set somewhat stricter depreciation standards effective in July. But now, defense contractors have sent their lobbyists swarming over Capitol Hill to soften these mild standards.

Footnote: General Electric, Genral Dynamics, United Technologies and Lockheed swiftly and stoutly denied Proxmire's charges. All four claimed they are in full compliance with federal standards.

FEEDING THE REFUGEES: A White House inquiry about the Agriculture Department's ability to feed the incoming Vietnamese refugees has produced a typical bureaucratic response.

A memo, intended for official eyes only, explains the refugees couldn't receive food stamps because the rules stipulate that recipients must be family units living in households. So the refugees, homeless by definition, couldn't qualify.

The memo goes on to outline other limitations, never mentioning that the Agriculture Department has plenty of surplus dairy products that could be used to feed the hungry refugees.

Those who have reached the United States, meanwhile, have received a cool reception. For instance, Rep. Bob Sikes, D.-Fla., who has a hand on the military pursestrings in Congress, raised a howl with the Pentagon for dumping refugees at Eglin Air Force Base in his Florida panhandle district.

Sikes finally got assurances that Eglin wouldn't get too many refugees and that those who landed wouldn't stay too long. The irony is that Sikes consistently supported the Vietnam War. In his view, apparently, the Vietnamese are fine people, but he wouldn't want to live next door to them.

President Ford, meanwhile, has been pushing Congress to approve $327 million in humanitarian aid. But it will take more than money to make a home for the refugees in the United States.

An eighteenth-century physician, Dr. Sangrado, would be best forgotten for this theory: It is an error to believe that blood is necessary for life.

UFO plans fish fry

The Scott County chapter of the United Farmers Organization will sponsor a fish fry from 6:30 to 9 p.m. Saturday at the American Legion Hall, 333 S. Kingshighway. Danny Dumey of Painton, the chapter president, said the event is being held as an appreciation dinner for farmers.

The UFO, which has established chapters in several Southeast Missouri counties, supports voluntary cutbacks in production by farmers in an effort to increase prices they receive for their products.

"During the last four months all of the United Farmers Organization officers have heard a lot of excuses about not cutting production from farmers all over the county," Dumey said.

"The most popular excuse is that farmers say they can't afford to lay out the land. Well, I can't afford to lay out my land either, but I can't afford to raise a good crop on every acre I have and get paid nothing for it.

"This is why United Farmers are cutting production 10 to 20 per cent on their land. It is strictly a management position."

Underlying 20 per cent of the world's land, permafrost in some places extends only a short distance beneath the surface.

JEFFERSON CITY — Elfrink Trucking Co. of Advance has agreed to a Missouri Public Service Commission cease and desist order that it stop making intrastate runs between Sikeston and St. Louis. The order went into effect Monday.

Elfrink Trucking admitted to the PSC that it made runs between Sikeston and St. Louis in violation of the law on 22 days in January. Elfrink admitted it had no authority to make intrastate runs between the two cities.

The Public Service Commission said it will seek penalties in court on each of the 22 violations. The law provides for penalties of between $100 and $2,000 per violation.

A PSC spokesman said the order did not apply to Elfrink's hauling of interstate goods between the two cities, but only involved shipments that originate and terminate in either Sikeston or St. Louis.

Board of trustees appoints 2 in Lambert

LAMBERT — Brenda Schiwitz has been appointed village clerk, and Jim Green of Sikeston has been appointed village attorney. The Board of Trustees took the action Saturday morning at its first meeting.

Mrs. Schiwitz has been acting as village clerk in an unofficial capacity sinced early April. Green was retained in the latter part of March to represent the village.

Under Green's guidance, the village, which had been dormant for an undetermined number of years, was recently reactivated.

Five trustees -- Rosalie Bollinger, Noble Milam, Arthur Schiwitz III, Mrs. Robert Carraker and Owen Wells Jr. -- were elected in a special election held on April 15.

Mrs. Schiwitz said the Board of Trustees has no definite plans, but several areas are being investigated, including putting up some type of city limit signs and a survey by the Missouri State Highway Department to determine a safe speed limit through the town.

"We're getting things started slowly but surely," she said.

Crump is appointed to the police board

CHAFFEE--Carlos Crump has been appointed to the police board. The City Council took the action Monday night and accepted the resignation of Milton Gehrs from the police force.

City Clerk Lois Murphy said Gehrs was hired just a few weeks ago, but never really accepted the job. Since he was hired, however, he had to submit a resignation.

The council also voted to pay Elmer Trost the usual pay of city police chief--$138.47 per week for a 40-hour week and $3.46 per hour overtime.

Trost was appointed to the position April 21. He had been receiving regular patrolman's salary.

today's woman

"more spice than everything nice"

Women on the go

ESTHER GULLETT, Route Three, brings new life to forgotten, beat-up dolls. About four years ago, Mrs. Gullett who is 62 decided she needed a hobby.

To find it, she attended rummage and garage sales, auctions and flea markets to buy old dolls. At home, she scrubs them clean, fixes and styles their hair, adds zest to cheeks and eyes and paints fingernails. One doll was completely flat and Mrs. Gullet stuffed newspapers in it for a humanly plumpness.

Pretty dolls need pretty clothes and Mrs. Gullett designs doll clothes from fabric bought at yard good stores. In fact, she wanted to be a designer when a young girl. "I've always loved dolls. That's how I learned to sew making doll clothes."

Many of the clothes are long, tiered dresses with rows of lace and hats also add a flair. Bonnets, tams, wide brims and berets are her specialty. Her husband, Kelley, helps her fit them to achieve a sporty look.

"I dress them to match their personality. Each doll has a different one. Most people don't notice that. Their eyes are all different shapes just like people's."

She enjoys creating brides, ballerinas and especially bed dolls. These dolls sit prettily on a cushion of foam rubber.

Mrs. Gullett can restore and dress about two dolls in a day's work. While she works on them, she often talks to the dolls. Her favorite is Patsy, an old doll in perfect condition.

Since she moved to Sikeston in September from Pontiac, Mich., she has sold about eight dolls to older Sikestonians through word-of-mouth advertising. "I played dolls until I was 13 years old. Kids don't do that anymore. They are playing sports or watching TV." However, seven granddaughters own bed dolls. The couple have five children and a total of 14 grandchildren.

Although dolls are scarce, Mrs. Gullett works on a doll immediately when she does find one. "I enjoy restoring dolls. There are so many older women who love dolls who never had dolls when they were young.

We have prettier dolls now. When I was a young girl, they had painted eyes. They look more human now. I can see a different expression in each doll's face. They intrigue me."

Practical Nurse Program to get clean bill of health

By BONNIE GREER
Health Occupation Instructor
Sikeston Public Schools

The Sikeston Public School Practical Nurse Program recently underwent a thorough physical examination as part of re-evaluation tour for accreditation. Tentative reports indicate that the program is healthy and growing.

Sister Mary Walsh, director of Practical Nursing, and Sarah Lynch, chairman of the Board of Review of the National League for Nursing, of New York City, were in Sikeston for a re-evaluation visit. The Sikeston's practical nurse program has been nationally accredited by the National League for Nursing since 1967. The league is officially recognized as the national accrediting agency for nursing education by the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

The Sikeston Public Schools Practical Nurse Program was the first school of practical nursing in Missouri and the first one founded west of the Mississippi River to achieve national accreditation. Since then, three more Missouri schools and as well as others across the country have earned the same recognition.

There are many reasons for the accreditation of nursing programs. Some of them include the fact that the faculty and students of an accredited program continually evaluate itself and recently new nursing textbooks were bought as an improvement. Also, constantly improving programs all over the United States and territories promotes the improvement of nursing services. A school must meet stiff requirements to be accredited and agencies that hire nurses are aware of this. Sikeston's program has had 338 nurses graduate since it began. The current class has about 40 students.

Sister Walsh and Mrs. Lynch spent a busy two days in Sikeston. They pored over the school's philosophy of giving an up-to-date education and an objective of training nurses for a career of service. Organization and administration, curriculum, faculty preparation and qualifications, student policies and other pertinent records and reports were carefully scrutinized. They trecked down miles of hospital, nursing home and school corridors inspecting clinical facilities and talking with various people in those areas. Their purpose was to find out for themselves the kind of relationship that existed between the school and the facilities where students receive their practicval experience.

The visitors also talked with owners of home health agencies and nursing homes and private citizens who employ the graduates in the community to ascertain if the school was graduating nurses who are professional at their work.

The visitors said they liked the area, and were impressed with the modern medical facilities here, but suggested the school's library be updated in regard to periodicals. They have returned to New York with the results of their probing which will be presented at the June meeting of the board of review.

Sister Walsh and Mrs. Lynch were unable to say definitely that the program would be accredited again, but from all indications, the diagnosis the board of review will give in June will be, "a clean bill of health."

Heritage House to sponsor clinic

The Heritage House will sponsor a free blood pressure clinic from 10 a.m., to 12 p.m., May 13 and May 16.

Senior citizens will not be served meals on the late Harry Truman's birthday, May 8 or on Memorial Day, May 26. However, the center will be open May 8 only.

Senior citizens are urged to sign a petition at the Heritage House to promote prohibiton of sales tax on food and medicine.

Band practice is held at 2 p.m., each second and fourth Friday of the month at the Heritage House.

The Full Gospel Business Men's Fellowship will meet at 7:30 p.m., Saturday at the Heritage House and May 17 is the date for an evening out. Volunteers are needed to help cook, serve and clean up for this event.

Household hints

Enjoy one last bowl of chili before shifting into gear for summer cooking. Heat a 15½-ounce can of chili con carne and stir in a pound of skinless franks, cut in chunks. When heated thru, add a cup of grated cheddar cheese and cook just until the cheese melts. If you like, serve in hot, crusty buns and call 'em sloppy franks.

Allegra Morris

Local girl chosen for scouting trip

Cadette Girl Scout Allegra Morris, 14, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. David Morris, Highway 61 South, was recently selected to attend "Sanibel Shelling" July 14-28, on Sanibel Island, Fla.

She and 72 other Girl Scouts will hunt for shells, learn to recognize them, study their habitat, make a collection and create shell arrangements.

Dance students to give recital

About 65 students of the Patti Simmons School of Dance in Parma will present a spring recital at 7:30 p.m., Saturday in the Sikeston Activity Center.

This year's theme is "Dancing Thru the Years." Tap, acrobatic, ballet, toe, jazz and personality dances will be featured.

The students are from Sikeston and surrounding communities and recently performed at the Sikeston Convalescent Center.

Tickets are available from the students or may be bought at the door.

Household hints

You can lower your food bill despite high prices, say home economists for Union Carbide's Food Science Institute. Plan meals around economical meats, such as skinless franks and bologna or salami.

Ann Landers

Irked lauds airport baggage check

Dear Ann Landers: I am writing in response to "Irked at La Guardia." I, too, am a frequent traveler, being a flight attendant for a major airline.

A few years ago I had the unfortunate experience of being hijacked. It was the most terrifying thing that has ever happened to me. We were completely at the mercy of a gun-wielding maniac. If the security check system had been in effect at that time it would have saved 120 passengers and eight crew members (not to mention their families and friends) a great deal of agony.

I'd like to say to "Irked," if the security check system irritates you so much why don't you check your baggage in cargo? Anyone who has been on a plane for 14 hours without food, water and working toilets and spent a night in Cuba, will agree with me it's no fun. So please don't knock the system until you have been subjected to the alternative. -- Diverted

Dear D.: Amen, friend. As another frequent traveler I'm delighted the airlines are checking hand luggage. I admit, however, that I'm partial to airlines that use X-ray equipment. This precludes digging around in purses and tote bags.

Dear Ann Landers: For the past seven months I have been dating an unwed father. Perry is 21 years old. (I am 20.) His baby is six months old and he is crazy about her. He was engaged to marry the mother but they couldn't get along and the engagement was broken twice. He still sees her because he is so wild about the child.

Perry's parents have been on his back a lot since the baby was born. They want him to marry the girl and work out their differences later. This is their only grandchild and they are crazy about the little girl, too.

Everything was fine until two months ago when I had to leave town to take care of my sister's children. She needed surgery and I offered to help out. When I returned to town, Perry said his feelings toward me had changed and we could never go back to where we were. I love the guy and want things back to normal. I'm sure when I was away the baby's mother got to him and this is where the trouble started.

Will you please tell me how to get Perry to marry me? I know he loves me and not the mother of his child. He has told me so a dozen times. -- Perry's Girl

Dear Girl: Sorry, but you're fighting a losing battle -- actually if you lose this one you win.

An unwilling groom makes a very poor husband. Perry would be forever going back to the other woman in order to see his child. This would be the source of never-ending arguments between you two. My advice is to write off Perry NOW and save yourself a lot of heartache.

Dear Ann Landers: I've been in the service and my mother saved every one of your columns for me becaue she knows I'm a big fan.

I just ran into the letter from the weirdo doctor who suggested that the wife of the snorer hit him in the face with a fly swatter.

How can a person get a night's sleep if he has to worry about being attacked for doing a normal thing like snoring? I couldn't believe my eyes.

My grandpa used to snore and it was a very comforting sound. He was a wonderful person and knowing that he was there made us all feel safe. So here's a message to the snorers of the world: Don't feel sad. Noteveryone hates you. Some of us love you. -- J.D., USMC

Dear J.D.: Speak for yourself, Buddy.

Women on the go

ESTHER GULLETT, Route Three, brings new life to forgotten, beat-up dolls. About four years ago, Mrs. Gullett who is 62 decided she needed a hobby.

To find it, she attended rummage and garage sales, auctions and flea markets to buy old dolls. At home, she scrubs them clean, fixes and styles their hair, adds zest to cheeks and eyes and paints fingernails. One doll was completely flat and Mrs. Gullet stuffed newspapers in it for a humanly plumpness.

Pretty dolls need pretty clothes and Mrs. Gullett designs doll clothes from fabric bought at yard good stores. In fact, she wanted to be a designer when a young girl. "I've always loved dolls. That's how I learned to sew making doll clothes."

Many of the clothes are long, tiered dresses with rows of lace and hats also add a flair. Bonnets, tams, wide brims and berets are her specialty. Her husband, Kelley, helps her fit them to achieve a sporty look.

"I dress them to match their personality. Each doll has a different one. Most people don't notice that. Their eyes are all different shapes just like people's."

She enjoys creating brides, ballerinas and especially bed dolls. These dolls sit prettily on a cushion of foam rubber.

Mrs. Gullett can restore and dress about two dolls in a day's work. While she works on them, she often talks to the dolls. Her favorite is Patsy, an old doll in perfect condition.

Since she moved to Sikeston in September from Pontiac, Mich., she has sold about eight dolls to older Sikestonians through word-of-mouth advertising. "I played dolls until I was 13 years old. Kids don't do that anymore. They are playing sports or watching TV." However, seven granddaughters own bed dolls. The couple have five children and a total of 14 grandchildren.

Although dolls are scarce, Mrs. Gullett works on a doll immediately when she does find one. "I enjoy restoring dolls. There are so many older women who love dolls who never had dolls when they were young.

We have prettier dolls now. When I was a young girl, they had painted eyes. They look more human now. I can see a different expression in each doll's face. They intrigue me."

Practical Nurse Program to get clean bill of health

By BONNIE GREER
Health Occupation Instructor
Sikeston Public Schools

The Sikeston Public School Practical Nurse Program recently underwent a thorough physical examination as part of re-evaluation tour for accreditation. Tentative reports indicate that the program is healthy and growing.

Sister Mary Walsh, director of Practical Nursing, and Sarah Lynch, chairman of the Board of Review of the National League for Nursing, of New York City, were in Sikeston for a re-evaluation visit. The Sikeston's practical nurse program has been nationally accredited by the National League for Nursing since 1967. The league is officially recognized as the national accrediting agency for nursing education by the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

The Sikeston Public Schools Practical Nurse Program was the first school of practical nursing in Missouri and the first one founded west of the Mississippi River to achieve national accreditation. Since then, three more Missouri schools and as well as others across the country have earned the same recognition.

There are many reasons for the accreditation of nursing programs. Some of them include the fact that the faculty and students of an accredited program continually evaluate itself and recently new nursing textbooks were bought as an improvement. Also, constantly improving programs all over the United States and territories promotes the improvement of nursing services. A school must meet stiff requirements to be accredited and agencies that hire nurses are aware of this. Sikeston's program has had 338 nurses graduate since it began. The current class has about 40 students.

Sister Walsh and Mrs. Lynch spent a busy two days in Sikeston. They pored over the school's philosophy of giving an up-to-date education and an objective of training nurses for a career of service. Organization and administration, curriculum, faculty preparation and qualifications, student policies and other pertinent records and reports were carefully scrutinized. They trecked down miles of hospital, nursing home and school corridors inspecting clinical facilities and talking with various people in those areas. Their purpose was to find out for themselves the kind of relationship that existed between the school and the facilities where students receive their practicval experience.

The visitors also talked with owners of home health agencies and nursing homes and private citizens who employ the graduates in the community to ascertain if the school was graduating nurses who are professional at their work.

The visitors said they liked the area, and were impressed with the modern medical facilities here, but suggested the school's library be updated in regard to periodicals. They have returned to New York with the results of their probing which will be presented at the June meeting of the board of review.

Sister Walsh and Mrs. Lynch were unable to say definitely that the program would be accredited again, but from all indications, the diagnosis the board of review will give in June will be, "a clean bill of health."

Allegra Morris

Local girl chosen for scouting trip

Cadette Girl Scout Allegra Morris, 14, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. David Morris, Highway 61 South, was recently selected to attend "Sanibel Shelling" July 14-28, on Sanibel Island, Fla.

She and 72 other Girl Scouts will hunt for shells, learn to recognize them, study their habitat, make a collection and create shell arrangements.

Heritage House to sponsor clinic

The Heritage House will sponsor a free blood pressure clinic from 10 a.m., to 12 p.m., May 13 and May 16.

Senior citizens will not be served meals on the late Harry Truman's birthday, May 8 or on Memorial Day, May 26. However, the center will be open May 8 only.

Senior citizens are urged to sign a petition at the Heritage House to promote prohibiton of sales tax on food and medicine.

Band practice is held at 2 p.m., each second and fourth Friday of the month at the Heritage House.

The Full Gospel Business Men's Fellowship will meet at 7:30 p.m., Saturday at the Heritage House and May 17 is the date for an evening out. Volunteers are needed to help cook, serve and clean up for this event.

Household hints

Enjoy one last bowl of chili before shifting into gear for summer cooking. Heat a 15½-ounce can of chili con carne and stir in a pound of skinless franks, cut in chunks. When heated thru, add a cup of grated cheddar cheese and cook just until the cheese melts. If you like, serve in hot, crusty buns and call 'em sloppy franks.

Dance students to give recital

About 65 students of the Patti Simmons School of Dance in Parma will present a spring recital at 7:30 p.m., Saturday in the Sikeston Activity Center.

This year's theme is "Dancing Thru the Years." Tap, acrobatic, ballet, toe, jazz and personality dances will be featured.

The students are from Sikeston and surrounding communities and recently performed at the Sikeston Convalescent Center.

Tickets are available from the students or may be bought at the door.

Household hints

You can lower your food bill despite high prices, say home economists for Union Carbide's Food Science Institute. Plan meals around economical meats, such as skinless franks and bologna or salami.

Ann Landers

Irked lauds airport baggage check

Dear Ann Landers: I am writing in response to "Irked at La Guardia." I, too, am a frequent traveler, being a flight attendant for a major airline.

A few years ago I had the unfortunate experience of being hijacked. It was the most terrifying thing that has ever happened to me. We were completely at the mercy of a gun-wielding maniac. If the security check system had been in effect at that time it would have saved 120 passengers and eight crew members (not to mention their families and friends) a great deal of agony.

I'd like to say to "Irked," if the security check system irritates you so much why don't you check your baggage in cargo? Anyone who has been on a plane for 14 hours without food, water and working toilets and spent a night in Cuba, will agree with me it's no fun. So please don't knock the system until you have been subjected to the alternative. -- Diverted

Dear D.: Amen, friend. As another frequent traveler I'm delighted the airlines are checking hand luggage. I admit, however, that I'm partial to airlines that use X-ray equipment. This precludes digging around in purses and tote bags.

Dear Ann Landers: For the past seven months I have been dating an unwed father. Perry is 21 years old. (I am 20.) His baby is six months old and he is crazy about her. He was engaged to marry the mother but they couldn't get along and the engagement was broken twice. He still sees her because he is so wild about the child.

Perry's parents have been on his back a lot since the baby was born. They want him to marry the girl and work out their differences later. This is their only grandchild and they are crazy about the little girl, too.

Everything was fine until two months ago when I had to leave town to take care of my sister's children. She needed surgery and I offered to help out. When I returned to town, Perry said his feelings toward me had changed and we could never go back to where we were. I love the guy and want things back to normal. I'm sure when I was away the baby's mother got to him and this is where the trouble started.

Will you please tell me how to get Perry to marry me? I know he loves me and not the mother of his child. He has told me so a dozen times. -- Perry's Girl

Dear Girl: Sorry, but you're fighting a losing battle -- actually if you lose this one you win.

An unwilling groom makes a very poor husband. Perry would be forever going back to the other woman in order to see his child. This would be the source of never-ending arguments between you two. My advice is to write off Perry NOW and save yourself a lot of heartache.

Dear Ann Landers: I've been in the service and my mother saved every one of your columns for me becaue she knows I'm a big fan.

I just ran into the letter from the weirdo doctor who suggested that the wife of the snorer hit him in the face with a fly swatter.

How can a person get a night's sleep if he has to worry about being attacked for doing a normal thing like snoring? I couldn't believe my eyes.

My grandpa used to snore and it was a very comforting sound. He was a wonderful person and knowing that he was there made us all feel safe. So here's a message to the snorers of the world: Don't feel sad. Noteveryone hates you. Some of us love you. -- J.D., USMC

Audit now underway

CHAFFEE — The annual audit of the city books is currently being conducted by the Cape Girardeau firm of Rothaus, Bartels, Earley & Co., City Clerk Lois Murphy said Wednesday.

She said this is the customary yearly audit and that nothing out of the ordinary is expected to turn up. If it does, she said it will probably be an honest mistake.

Some have expressed hope that the audit may clear up some of the confusion surrounding $966 in missing police fines and an apparent surplus of $1,346 that City Collector Charles Cunningham discovered in his cash drawer on Dec. 23, 1974.

The missing fines were collected in City Court between Aug. 20, 1974, and the latter part of December. Cunningham reported in January that the fines had not been turned over to him.

Former Mayor Sally Wehmeyer has stated that the city hopes to find out what happened through this audit. Les Lankford, the present mayor, has said that he hopes the state will not audit the city books until the present audit is completed.

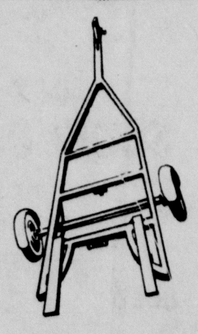

State Auditor George Lehr's office is planning to audit the books in response to petitions presented to the office by Chaffee citizens during February.

CHARLESTON-Warrants issued today for Joel Day of Charleston and Danny Johnson of East Prairie charged the two with burglary and stealing, according to Deputy Sheriff Norris Grissom.

Schmitt Music Center in downtown Minneapolis has one side of its 5-story building exposed (adjacent to a parking lot). On it a page from a musical score is neatly painted with bars, notes, clefs, accents, sharps and flats. It was projected onto the wall then traced with graphite. The actual painting took 10 days to complete. Hundreds of callers have inquired about the identity of the music and are delighted to learn it is Ravel's "Gaspard de la Nuit" for piano.

The Prayer

"Their hearts had felt strangely warm as he talked with them and explained the Scriptures during the walk down the road." Luke 24:32, TLB.

PRAYER: Teach me to walk uprightly with those about me, O Father, warming their hearts with Your good news and helping motivate them to some sevice for You. Amen.

"HEALTH TIPS"

Do you know why you are requested to raise your hand when taking an oath? In ancient time people born in slavery were branded on the palm of the right hand and were not entitled to the privilege of taking an oath. The right hand raised was to show the administering official whether or not the palm was branded. We also take an oath to fill each prescription accurately.

Warrants issued in Charleston

CHARLESTON-Warrants issued today for Joel Day of Charleston and Danny Johnson of East Prairie charged the two with burglary and stealing, according to Deputy Sheriff Norris Grissom.

The two youths are charged with an April 27 break-in at W.C. Bryant Farms one mile east of East Prairie and the theft of 110 five-gallon cans and 30 five-gallon cans of herbicides valued at $18,150.

Schmitt Music Center in downtown Minneapolis has one side of its 5-story building exposed (adjacent to a parking lot). On it a page from a musical score is neatly painted with bars, notes, clefs, accents, sharps and flats. It was projected onto the wall then traced with graphite. The actual painting took 10 days to complete. Hundreds of callers have inquired about the identity of the music and are delighted to learn it is Ravel's "Gaspard de la Nuit" for piano.

The Prayer

"Their hearts had felt strangely warm as he talked with them and explained the Scriptures during the walk down the road." Luke 24:32, TLB.

PRAYER: Teach me to walk uprightly with those about me, O Father, warming their hearts with Your good news and helping motivate them to some sevice for You. Amen.

"HEALTH TIPS"

Do you know why you are requested to raise your hand when taking an oath? In ancient time people born in slavery were branded on the palm of the right hand and were not entitled to the privilege of taking an oath. The right hand raised was to show the administering official whether or not the palm was branded. We also take an oath to fill each prescription accurately.

World news

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford's emergency aid request to help up to 150,000 Indochina refugees start new lives is on an accelerated timetable for House action next week, following unanimous subcommittee approval. The House immigration subcommittee approved the bill Wednesday night after Judiciary Chairman Peter W. Rodino, D-N.J., took the extraordinary step of publicly telling the subcommittee to get moving.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A battle is developing over PRESIDENT Ford's plan to eliminate veterans' education benefits for persons joining the armed forces after July 1, a move military officials fear might reduce enlistments in the volunteer army. Ford made the proposal Wednesday when he announced that with the end of the Vietnam war several other special benefits were being eliminated for new members of the armed services.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Taxes for Social Security are likely to go up to keep the retirement system solvent, but employers and employes may be spared an immediate tax increase, congressional testimony indicates. In any case, Social Security Commissioner James B. Cardwell and Rep. James A. Burke, D-Mass., agreed there is no prospect that workers already retired or planning to retire in the future will have their benefits cut off.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some of those who favor gun control object to President Ford's decision not to recommend handgun registration and say registration is a compromise approach compared to proposals calling for a flat ban on the manufacture of cheap handguns. On the other hand, a major opponent of gun controls, the National Rifle Association, said Wednesday it was heartened by Ford's statement on gun control at his Tuesday night news conference.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Frank Church says Gulf Oil Corp.'s chief executive will be called to testify publicly next week about who received $4 million in political donations from the company. "We must insist on full disclosure," said Church, chairman of the Senate subcommittee on multinational corporations. A hearing is set for May 16. Gulf Chairman Bob R. Dorsey publicly assured the governments of Venezuela and Ecuador on Wednesday that those nations were not involved in the $4 million gifts.

Anyone who has sex once, just once, can get syphilis or gonorrhea.

VD is spreading through our neighborhoods. Hitting people you'd least expect to get it.

If a woman carrying a baby doesn't know she's carrying VD too, the baby will be born damaged. Finding that hard to believe is one of the reasons it's spreading so fast.

So don't think it's not your problem.

Antibiotics cure VD and prevent its spreading. So it's ironic there's so much VD around when it's so easy to prevent or cure.

If you're curious or confused, get information or a pamphlet at most pharmacies or a health clinic. If you need help, see a doctor.

V.D. isn't what "other people" get anymore.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Jones of Morley, a girl, on last Wednesday.

L. T. Parrish, president of the Parrish Motor Co., and for about 22 years a resident of Sikeston, was found dead in his room at the home of Dr. L. B. Adams Saturday.

John A. Poindexter, a resident of Sikeston between 1900 and 1917, died Thursday at his home in Smackover, Ark. Last weekend his body was sent here for funeral services.

The car in which Clyde Barrow and his girl, Bonnie Parker, were killed recently at Arcadia, La., will be displayed at the Sikeston Motor Co., show room today and tomorrow. The automobile is being taken throughout the country in an effort to co-operate with President Roosevelt in a nation-wide drive against crime.

The city light and water office will probably be moved to new quarters in the People's Bank building by the end of this week. Equipment of the Southeast Missouri Burial Association, which now occupies the People's Bank, will be transferred either today or tomorrow to the Shankle building on West Center street.

Three Sikeston residents are among the 729 students who will be candidates for degrees at the University of Missouri commencement on Wednesday, June 5. They are Glenn W. Anderson, a candidate for the degree of bachelor of science in agriculture; Edith Esta Becker, candidate for a bachelor of science degree in education; and Conley Purcell, a candidate for a degree of bachelor of laws.

What's the law

The case of the pop-eyed rider

By JACK STRAUSS, LL.B.

Looey was about as lucky in elevators as Henry the VIII had been in marriage. He'd get trapped in them. He'd get trampled in them. And invariably, when an elevator would fail to stop flush with the floor, he'd trip out of them.

Thus, while Looey knew that elevators were his nemisis, he never, however, figured that one would be his guillotine. While bending over to tie his shoelace, and elevator door closed on his neck leaving his head outside and his torso inside.

When finally freed and his bulging eyes had popped back into their sockets, Looey sued the owner of the building for his injuries.

"Elevator doors aren't supposed to close on people," he complained in court. "If it hadn't beef for the rubber rims on the doors, I'd no longer have any need for a hat."

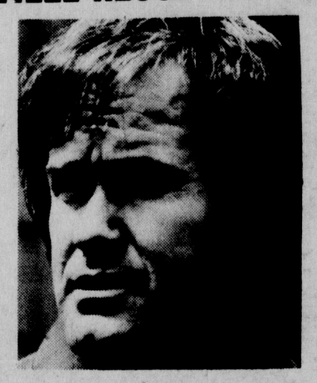

"I can't be blamed for what happened to Looey," responded the owner of the building. "While it might have been my elevator, there's no proof that either my negligence or anyone else's was responsible for the accident. Without proof of some negligence on my part. I can't be compelled to pay Looey a penny."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you make the owner of the building pay pop-eyed Looey for his injuries?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that since mechanical devices can get out of working order and cause injury without negligence on the part of anyone, the building owner could not be held liable without proof that, in some way, he had been negligent.

Wallace cites mistakes made

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gov. George C. Wallace of Alabama recently told a group of foreign correspondents he thinks the United States may have been fighting the wrong people in World War II.

In a wide-ranging interview with the correspondents on March 3, Wallace said he thought there might never have been a second world war if the United States had cultivated the friendship of the Japanese and Germans after World War I.

In an opening comment to a Japanese correspondent Wallace said, "I wish we'd been on the same side in World War II, instead of being on the same side with China and Russia."

A transcript of the interview was obtained today by The Associated Press after The Washington Post published a story about the interview.

The foreign journalists interviewed Wallace while on a two-week tour of the South sponsored by the U.S. Information Agency's Foreign Press Center.

The journalists interviewed the governors of Georgia, Mississippi, Arkansas and Tennessee as well as Wallace during their tour.

The Alabama governor emphasized he did not agree with the policies of Nazi Germany.

"But that was not the German people," he said. "The German people were mistreated after World War I.

"The Versailles Treaty that was imposed on them by France and Britain and the United States — and, mainly, France and Britain — was a treaty that brought Hitler to power."

Wasllace added that he thought the Japanese "were provoked to a certain extent by people, by interests in this country that helped to bring about Pearl Harbor.

"And what I'm saying is that our true foreign policy in those years ought to have been cultivated, the friendship of the Japanese and of the Germans instead of being antagonistic."

by the campaign finance law approved by voters last fall to oversee the law's enforcement.

The measure requires all candidates to reveal their sources of income and—if they spend more than $500 on their campaign—their contributors.

It provides that any pre-election complaints or investigations be kept secret, but makes no mention of maintaining the secrecy of complaints after the elections.

Al Kemp, the commission's executive director, and Commission Chairman Sam Murphy defended their stance, saying to release the names without investigating the charges first could cause "irreparable damage" to those accused.

Kemp also contended the names might be protected under the open meetings law exemption of cases involving litigation.

The commission, said Murphy, probably will set a policy on the matter at its next meeting May 30, as well as determining from preliminary staff findings if the complaints should be pursued further.

Family service reports on funds

The Scott County Division of Family Services office distributed funds totaling $158,552 in April, with the greatest part being paid to the aid to dependent children program, Breman Montgomery, the county director, has announced.

A total of 987 families with 2,245 children received $112,346 in ADC payments. Each family received an average check of $113.82.

Montgomery said 924 persons received a total of $33,829 in state supplemental payments from the combined payroll of Missouri state supplemental income and the federal supplemental security income programs. This group previously received old age assistance, permanent and total disability or aid to the blind assistance.

General relief funds of $8,355 went to 120 families consisting of 134 persons, with each check averaging $69.62 per family.

Twenty persons received a total of $3,912 in nursing care supplement payments.

Child welfare services were provided for 238 children, and 216 children received preventive services. Another $2,780 was expended from County Court payroll and aid to dependent children-foster care payroll for 32 children in foster care.

During April, 44 adults also received services. Protective services were given to 33 adults, and preventive services were extended to 11 adults.

One person received a $110 blind pension check.

no knowledge of any such directive from Washington.

In South Vietnam, where the new government resumed communications with the outside world, Associated Press writers George Esper and Peter Arnett reported they were able to move about freely and tried to interview Lt. Gen. Tran Van Tra, chairman of the military administration committee for Saigon under the new regime.

Esper said the North Vietnamese guards at Independence Palace were polite and let them through the outer gates with nothing more to show than their name cards, something that would never have happened under ex-President Nguyen Van Thieu.

They did meet a general, but an interpreter said he could not give an interview because he did not speak English.

The first foreigner to cross the small "Freedom Bridge" into the Thai town of Aranyaprathet was a month-old French baby carried by a Thai Red Cross nurse. The infant was being fed intravenously. Its mother was the next across.

The evacuees, surrounded by baggage, looked disheveled as they lined up to cross the bridge in the very hot weather. Many were unshaven and said they had not changed their clothing on the trip.

Officials said the convoy of more than 20 trucks contained 230 French citizens, 200 Pakistanis and about 120 persons of other nationality including four Americans. Previous reports had said five U.S. citizens had remained behind in Phnom Penh after the first evacuation convoy brought out 585 foreigners Saturday.

The Americans were not immediately identified.

Only about 250 foreigners had been expected in the second convoy but French special envoy Marc Bonnefous said more had been picked up during the four-day journey.

Bonnefous said all the evacuees but one were in good health, an elderly French evacuee who made the 200-mile-plus trip in an ambulance and was seriously ill.

One French woman said "the Khmer Rouge provided enough food to all the foreigners in this group. We didn't have any trouble at all on the way. They gave us coconut milk and oranges every time we stopped."

Officials at the border said no one was left at the French Embassy where many of the group had taken refuge.

Red Cross doctors, Thai immigration officials and French diplomats were waiting to receive the group and take most of them to Bangkok.

Associated Press writers Denis D. Gray and Chhay Born Lay said foreigners among the first batch out Saturday told of executions in the streets and forced marches of people from the cities after the Khmer Rouge takeover. But they also spoke of kindness from the victorious rebels that enabled the evacuees to survive.

Douglas August Sapper III, a Vietnam veteran and vice president of a transport company who stayed behind after the U.S. evacuation of Phnom Penh to help people who had worked for him, said: "There were crowds of people on the rooftops and in the streets looking up to see the American helicopters do their air show in the sky. The Cambodians thought the U.S. Marines were coming to save Phnom Penh and acted as if they had just discovered a miracle cure for a terminal disease."

In the interest of the safety of those left behind, the accounts were not released until the final convoy entered Thailand.

A Saigon radio broadcast monitored in Bangkok said the Saigon general post office would relay ordinary telegrams to any part of North Vietnam and telex messages could be sent anywhere in the world.

Newsmen and photographers, both Vietnamese and foreign, must get press cards and letters of authorization from the metropolitan military committee, the broadcast said.

The radio said international letters could not be sent yet, but it said mail service within the two Vietnams had been restored.

In Laos, the two opposing sides in the coalition government signed an agreement to stop the clashes between the Vientiane and Pathet Lao forces that had disrupted the cease-fire there since mid-April, government sources said.

The agreement followed a cabinet meeting called to discuss a fresh outbreak on Route 13, the road to the royal capital of Luang Prabang, north of Vientiane. Military sources had reported that Pathet Lao troops backed by four tanks pushed rightist forces southward 17 miles from the key road junction at Phou Koun.

by the campaign finance law approved by voters last fall to oversee the law's enforcement.

The measure requires all candidates to reveal their sources of income and—if they spend more than $500 on their campaign—their contributors.

It provides that any pre-election complaints or investigations be kept secret, but makes no mention of maintaining the secrecy of complaints after the elections.

Al Kemp, the commission's executive director, and Commission Chairman Sam Murphy defended their stance, saying to release the names without investigating the charges first could cause "irreparable damage" to those accused.

Kemp also contended the names might be protected under the open meetings law exemption of cases involving litigation.

The commission, said Murphy, probably will set a policy on the matter at its next meeting May 30, as well as determining from preliminary staff findings if the complaints should be pursued further.

Wallace cites mistakes made

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gov. George C. Wallace of Alabama recently told a group of foreign correspondents he thinks the United States may have been fighting the wrong people in World War II.

In a wide-ranging interview with the correspondents on March 3, Wallace said he thought there might never have been a second world war if the United States had cultivated the friendship of the Japanese and Germans after World War I.

In an opening comment to a Japanese correspondent Wallace said, "I wish we'd been on the same side in World War II, instead of being on the same side with China and Russia."

A transcript of the interview was obtained today by The Associated Press after The Washington Post published a story about the interview.

The foreign journalists interviewed Wallace while on a two-week tour of the South sponsored by the U.S. Information Agency's Foreign Press Center.

The journalists interviewed the governors of Georgia, Mississippi, Arkansas and Tennessee as well as Wallace during their tour.

The Alabama governor emphasized he did not agree with the policies of Nazi Germany.

"But that was not the German people," he said. "The German people were mistreated after World War I.

"The Versailles Treaty that was imposed on them by France and Britain and the United States — and, mainly, France and Britain — was a treaty that brought Hitler to power."

Wasllace added that he thought the Japanese "were provoked to a certain extent by people, by interests in this country that helped to bring about Pearl Harbor.

"And what I'm saying is that our true foreign policy in those years ought to have been cultivated, the friendship of the Japanese and of the Germans instead of being antagonistic."

Family service reports on funds

The Scott County Division of Family Services office distributed funds totaling $158,552 in April, with the greatest part being paid to the aid to dependent children program, Breman Montgomery, the county director, has announced.

A total of 987 families with 2,245 children received $112,346 in ADC payments. Each family received an average check of $113.82.

Montgomery said 924 persons received a total of $33,829 in state supplemental payments from the combined payroll of Missouri state supplemental income and the federal supplemental security income programs. This group previously received old age assistance, permanent and total disability or aid to the blind assistance.

General relief funds of $8,355 went to 120 families consisting of 134 persons, with each check averaging $69.62 per family.

Twenty persons received a total of $3,912 in nursing care supplement payments.

Child welfare services were provided for 238 children, and 216 children received preventive services. Another $2,780 was expended from County Court payroll and aid to dependent children-foster care payroll for 32 children in foster care.

During April, 44 adults also received services. Protective services were given to 33 adults, and preventive services were extended to 11 adults.

One person received a $110 blind pension check.

In South Vietnam, where the new government resumed communications with the outside world, Associated Press writers George Esper and Peter Arnett reported they were able to move about freely and tried to interview Lt. Gen. Tran Van Tra, chairman of the military administration committee for Saigon under the new regime.

Esper said the North Vietnamese guards at Independence Palace were polite and let them through the outer gates with nothing more to show than their name cards, something that would never have happened under ex-President Nguyen Van Thieu.

They did meet a general, but an interpreter said he could not give an intêrview because he did not speak English.

The first foreigner to cross the small "Freedom Bridge" into the Thai 'town of Aranyaprathet was a month-old French baby carried by a Thai Red Cross nurse. The infant was being fed intravenously. Its mother was the next across.

The evacuees, surrounded by baggage, looked disheveled as they lined up to cross the bridge in the very hot weather. Many were unshaven and said they had not changed their clothing on the trip.

Officials said the convoy of more than 20 trucks contained 230 French citizens, 200 Pakistanis and about 120 persons of other nationality including four Americans. Previous reports had said five U.S. citizens had remained behind in Phnom Penh after the first evacuation convoy brought out 585 foreigners Saturday.

The Americans were not immediately identified.

Only about 250 foreigners had been expected in the second convoy but French special envoy Marc Bonnefous said more had been picked up during the four-day journey.

Bonnefous said all the evacuees but one were in good health, an elderly French evacuee who made the 200-mile-plus trip in an ambulance and was seriously ill.

One French woman said "the Khmer Rouge provided enough food to all the foreigners in this group. We didn't have any trouble at all on the way. They gave us coconut milk and oranges every time we stopped."

Officials at the border said no one was left at the French Embassy where many of the group had taken refuge.

Red Cross doctors, Thai immigration officials and French diplomats were waiting to receive the group and take most of them to Bangkok.

Associated Press writers Denis D. Gray and Chhay Born Lay said foreigners among the first batch out Saturday told of executions in the streets and forced marches of people from the cities after the Khmer Rouge takeover. But they also spoke of kindness from the victorious rebels that enabled the evacuees to survive.

Douglas August Sapper III, a Vietnam veteran and vice president of a transport company who stayed behind after the U.S. evacuation of Phnom Penh to help people who had worked for him, said: "There were crowds of people on the rooftops and in the streets looking up to see the American helicopters do their air show in the sky. The Cambodians thought the U.S. Marines were coming to save Phnom Penh and acted as if they had just discovered a miracle cure for a terminal disease."

In the interest of the safety of those left behind, the accounts were not released until the final convoy entered Thailand.

A Saigon radio broadcast monitored in Bangkok said the Saigon general post office would relay ordinary telegrams to any part of North Vietnam and telex messages could be sent anywhere in the world.

Newsmen and photographers, both Vietnamese and foreign, must get press cards and letters of authorization from the metropolitan military committee, the broadcast said.

The radio said international letters could not be sent yet, but it said mail service within the two Vietnams had been restored.

In Laos, the two opposing sides in the coalition government signed an agreement to stop the clashes between the Vientiane and Pathet Lao forces that had disrupted the cease-fire there since mid-April, government sources said.

The agreement followed a cabinet meeting called to discuss a fresh outbreak on Route 13, the road to the royal capital of Luang Prabang, north of Vientiane. Military sources had reported that Pathet Lao troops backed by four tanks pushed rightist forces southward 17 miles from the key road junction at Phou Koun.

Phillies drop Cards, 4-1

ST. LOUIS (AP)-Now that Dick Allen's back, how can the Philadelphia Phillies miss?

Manager Danny Ozark was wondering the same thing Wednesday night, so much so that he may have tossed in his sleep.

"I felt awfully good about a lot of things tonight," acknowledged Ozark, who earlier in the day flew to Philadelphia to attend a news conference with Allen.

"But I could hardly wait to get back here to see Garry Maddox in the outfield," related the Phils' manager, who later watched his team beat the St. Louis Cardinals 4-1.

Soothing to Ozark were the arrival of the fleet Maddox, who was acquired early in the week from San Francisco, the trade for Allen from Atlanta and Tug McGraw's tight relief pitching.

"Garry's not hitting right now, but he'll get his stroke," Ozark predicted after Maddox, who played center field, went 1-for-5 at bat.

"I said before that Allen would hit third, but that could change," Oxark noted. "If Garry begins to hit, he may bat third with Greg Luzinski fourth and Allen fifth. We'll have to wait and see.

"I think this is the best ball club I've had here," added Ozark, the Phils' third-season pilot. "There really isn't much room for improvement."

Allen and Maddox, through their offense and defense, are expected to bolster the Phillies' chances for a National League pennant.

But equally important to Ozark, whose club has been shaky on relief, is the role assigned the stocky, confident McGraw in the bullpen.

McGraw, appearing in his fifth game since activated April 24 following minor back surgery, entered with Lou Brock and Ted Sizemore on base for the Cards in the seventh inning.

He inducerd Bake McBride to fly out to end a threat, then set St. Louis down in order in the eighth and ninth to record his second save.

"Two years ago I would've looked the other way," said Ozark, who lifted right-hander Wayne Twitchell, 3-3, to bring in the veteran McGraw. "I feel for the first time as manager of this ball club I've got adequate relief."

In the absence of Allen, who is scheduled to join the team on Monday, Mike Schmidt pounded his fifth home run to power the Phils' attack.

Charlie Todd of Sikeston picked up his second win in as many weeks in the late-model competition at the Sikeston Speedway, winning his heat run and then coming back to claim a first place finish in the feature run.

Stanfill claimed only a second place finish in his heat run and succeeded in winding up third in the consolation bracket heat, but won over Rodney Holshouser of Jackson in the feature run.

League meet at Jeff City

CAPE GIRARDEAU--There are sometimes surprises in the game of golf, and nothing would come as a better pleasant surprise for Southeast Missouri State University Coach Carroll Williams than for his golf team to win this weekend's 54-hole MIAA tournament in Jefferson City.

Williams' crew placed second in the tournament last season, the highest finish ever for the Indians in the conference meet.

But if all that has gone before is a prelude to the future, Williams will not have the pleasure of seeing his squad move up a notch this spring in the MIAA standings.

"We always seem to play well enough to be in the thick of things, but not well enough to win," he says.

Last weekend provided a good example of what the coach was talking about. The Tribe took third in the SMS College Golf Invitational a at Springfield. The Indians were only four strokes behind the winners, host Southwest Missouri State University. Columbia College beat the Tribe by a stroke to finish second.

Indian golfers who are averaging in the 70s are sophomore Bill Kurre of Cape Girardeau, junior Mike Uhls of Cape Girardeau, and senior Tony Pruess of St. Louis.

Others who will probably round out the Southeast Missouri State squad for the MIAA event are senior John Heath of St. Louis, sophomore Mark McQuary of Cape Girardeau, and freshman Briann Mutert of Washington, Mo.

League meet at Jeff City

CAPE GIRARDEAU--There are sometimes surprises in the game of golf, and nothing would come as a better pleasant surprise for Southeast Missouri State University Coach Carroll Williams than for his golf team to win this weekend's 54-hole MIAA tournament in Jefferson City.

Williams' crew placed second in the tournament last season, the highest finish ever for the Indians in the conference meet.

But if all that has gone before is a prelude to the future, Williams will not have the pleasure of seeing his squad move up a notch this spring in the MIAA standings.

"We always seem to play well enough to be in the thick of things, but not well enough to win," he says.

Last weekend provided a good example of what the coach was talking about. The Tribe took third in the SMS College Golf Invitational a at Springfield. The Indians were only four strokes behind the winners, host Southwest Missouri State University. Columbia College beat the Tribe by a stroke to finish second.

Indian golfers who are averaging in the 70s are sophomore Bill Kurre of Cape Girardeau, junior Mike Uhls of Cape Girardeau, and senior Tony Pruess of St. Louis.

Others who will probably round out the Southeast Missouri State squad for the MIAA event are senior John Heath of St. Louis, sophomore Mark McQuary of Cape Girardeau, and freshman Briann Mutert of Washington, Mo.

Dambach leads SeMo

CAPE GIRARDEAU--Southeast Missouri State University's Indians must sweep their three-game series this weekend against Northwest Missouri State University of Maryville to finish their season with a better than .500 average in the MIAA.

The Indians of Coach Joe Uhls, already assured of a winning campaign with an 18-7 mark, are only 5-6 in MIAA play. And sweeping the series from the Bearcats will be difficult to pull off, since Northwest Missouri State is on top of the league with an 8-2 record and needs to win all three to assure that no one else will win or tie for the loop championship.

Uhls' squad is in sixth place, a number of Indians are suffering from injuries, and the team has not swept a MIAA series this spring.

The Indians won two of three from Central Missouri State University and Lincoln University and one of two from Northeast Missouri State. They lost three times to Southwest Missouri State University, and a series with the University of Missouri--Rolla was washed out entirely.

Despite their poor MIAA showing the Tribe has had a generally good season. Southeast Missouri State lost only one game against non-league competion, and last weekend the Indians established a new school record for most wins in a season.

The old record was 17, set last spring.

As a team, the Indians are batting .273 compared to their opponents' .205, and their pitching staff has an overall earned run average of 2.68 compared to the opponents' 3.93.

The leading individual hitter is sophomore Grant Dambach of Lilbourn, who has a .333 average. He is tied with freshman Dan Wieser of Topeka, Kan., for the RBI lead. Each has 15.

Among the mound corps senior Tim Smith of Poplar Bluff has tossed the most innings, 48 and two thirds, and won the most games, four. He has lost one.

Freshman Trae Hastings of Cape Girardeau has pitched 36 innings and has a 2-3 record, but he leads the team in strikeouts with 40.

Tops in the earned run department among regular hurlers is junior Dave Jorn of O'Fallon, Ill., who has an ERA of 2.42 in 29 and two thirds innings of work. His record is 2-2.

The season- ending series at Northwest Missouri State will begin with a single game Friday afternoon (May 9) and continue with a doubleheader on Saturday (May 10).

The Trifecta is the picking of the first three horses in a race in the exact order of finish. The Commission voted to allow the Trifecta in the last race of the day.

Dambach leads SeMo

CAPE GIRARDEAU--Southeast Missouri State University's Indians must sweep their three-game series this weekend against Northwest Missouri State University of Maryville to finish their season with a better than .500 average in the MIAA.

The Indians of Coach Joe Uhls, already assured of a winning campaign with an 18-7 mark, are only 5-6 in MIAA play. And sweeping the series from the Bearcats will be difficult to pull off, since Northwest Missouri State is on top of the league with an 8-2 record and needs to win all three to assure that no one else will win or tie for the loop championship.

Uhls' squad is in sixth place, a number of Indians are suffering from injuries, and the team has not swept a MIAA series this spring.

The Indians won two of three from Central Missouri State University and Lincoln University and one of two from Northeast Missouri State. They lost three times to Southwest Missouri State University, and a series with the University of Missouri--Rolla was washed out entirely.

Despite their poor MIAA showing the Tribe has had a generally good season. Southeast Missouri State lost only one game against non-league competion, and last weekend the Indians established a new school record for most wins in a season.

The old record was 17, set last spring.

As a team, the Indians are batting .273 compared to their opponents' .205, and their pitching staff has an overall earned run average of 2.68 compared to the opponents' 3.93.

The leading individual hitter is sophomore Grant Dambach of Lilbourn, who has a .333 average. He is tied with freshman Dan Wieser of Topeka, Kan., for the RBI lead. Each has 15.

Among the mound corps senior Tim Smith of Poplar Bluff has tossed the most innings, 48 and two thirds, and won the most games, four. He has lost one.

Freshman Trae Hastings of Cape Girardeau has pitched 36 innings and has a 2-3 record, but he leads the team in strikeouts with 40.

Tops in the earned run department among regular hurlers is junior Dave Jorn of O'Fallon, Ill., who has an ERA of 2.42 in 29 and two thirds innings of work. His record is 2-2.

The season- ending series at Northwest Missouri State will begin with a single game Friday afternoon (May 9) and continue with a doubleheader on Saturday (May 10).

Social Security taxes may go up

WASHINGTON (AP) — Taxes for Social Security are likely to go up to keep the retirement system solvent, but employers and employes may be spared an immediate tax increase, congressional testimony indicates.

In any case, Social Security Commissioner James B. Cardwell and Rep. James A. Burke, D-Mass., agreed there is no prospect that workers already retired or planning to retire in the future will have their benefits cut off.

Burke is chairman of a House Social Security subcommittee which heard Cardwell testify Wednesday that there is no justification for what he called alarmist predictions "that Social Security has gone broke."

The system's deficit is estimated at $3 billion this year and due to increase unless financing is changed, Cardwell testified.

But he said the reserves of more than $46 billion would carry the system without reduction in benefits until 1980 or 1981 even if nothing were done.

Cardwell left no doubt that the administration wants corrective measures, but suggested that these might safely wait until the economy struggles out of recession.

Burke said, however, he expects his committee to produce legislation this year. Neither Cardwell nor Burke suggested what the corrective measures might be, agreeing that more study both by the administration and Congress is needed.

The choices being studied include increasing taxes on higher-income workers and their employers or increasing taxes on all those covered by the Social Security system or taking some general tax revenues to help finance Social Security.
